① Excavating stairway of X. Very hard packed debris.

② Yesterday, I noticed a patch of scattered stones between IX, X and XI and ordered it examined.

The examination showed that only the ^{masonry} of the pyramid were left on the surface; but just south of the patch, the stairway entrance was found filled with hard packed debris. This was cleared down to a chamber, which was filled with two separate layers of debris.

The lower layer had stones on the surface; the upper layer was finely laminated (rain or wind).

Both were water packed and extremely hard.

Near the door, fragments of bowl stands of fine red ware, red polished
