Jan. 10.] In 502 II 4 the pavement has been torn up. The hole is filled with disturbed black debris. In it lies the remains of of an [Drawing]¹⁰ hm on a pedestal. In black granite. Much of the basis is missing. The crown and the beak are broken away. On the front is an inscription of Amenophis III.

The body lies under [Drawing]
the basis. Other frags.
were found near by.

In same hole, torso of small figure (fai. ?),
and other fragments.

Jan. 10. Finished rooms 1213 and 1214 and shifted gang to "W" side of mound. The latest crude-brick walls are fragmentary, and having suffered most from the sebbakhin, their plan cannot be recovered. The next period may be worked out and, I think the Aspalta period. But first the later walls must be cleared away. I shall let them stand until they can be marked on plan (2), then sweep them out in order to complete plan (2).
