(64) head the following inscription

[DRAWING]

--smeared with plaster?

--appears to have been omitted

There can now be no doubt whatever that this fine masonry in 500 was in existence in the time of Ramses II. Whether it was constructed by him or usurped by him is of course not clear.

(5) In 500 A, preparing an incline of earth and stones and laying the rails preparatory to moving the heavy statues out of the hole. The trench will then be in a condition to take the earth from another section.

(6) At Z, a heavy wall D-U in direction. Pottery of Pyr. types.

(7) Work on stair of VIII at Nuri. On the stair, some beads and several menats [DRAWING] of pale blue fai. (white body). Near doorway to chamber, two fragments of two separate ushebtj figures of blue faience

[DRAWING: hieroglyphs]
