

(Feb. 27)

(31)

through the door into C, breaks through the floor of C and goes on down six or seven meters into the solid rock. He manifestly failed to recognize the chamber when he found it,--a fault typical of the use of brute force as a substitute for intelligence in archaeological excavations. He did not clear out chambers B and A where we found a mass of potsherds.

N.B.

The examination of the potsherds etc is now over [?] and I will return to a discussion of the pyr. when this is finished.

[DRAWING]

The corner of a fai. offering tablet found in XI has traces of a Meroitic inscription.

(2)

Bldg 700, trench c' & d'. Trenches c' and d' have now been joined up in front of Bld. 700 SW corner and this work will hereafter be Bldg. 700.

[DRAWING]