- (3) In front of 600, a great irregular hole of recent origin. On the R. side of this, a second burial on right side head W (local E). This second burial (602) has a stone armlet (C-group type). Thus the evidence grows that these burials are M.E. to N.E.⁵⁴ (say 1500-1900 BC).

[DRAWING]

Owing to the change in direction of the river W is the same as N at Kerma and in lower Nubia.

D. from this and in front of 701 is an extensive pavement of red stones about in a level or a little under the level of the floor of 701.

- (4) Resumed work on the complex of walls of buildings of different date hitherto called 900. The debris has been so turned over by sebbakhin and
