

(March 2)

(34)

[DRAWING] Proceeding to sink a trench around wall to the foundation of the older wall. In the angle is a small room of the later small masonry built against the older wall. The floor is a hard crust (unbroken). No doorway is visible. The masonry at (x) is as follows:

[DRAWING]

So far s preserved. The stones are large and poorly dressed. Around the corner at y, the small masonry (beautifully squared stones laid in grey mortar, harder than the stone) is as follows.

[DRAWING]

We have cleared along a surface of hard sandstone debris (natural?) washed down from the Gebel.
