

(March 24)
(53)

the floor, were four or five small Osiris (Amon?) figures, rudely [??] cut in bronze strip.

[DRAWING]

Under the D. side of 703 are parts of two walls of red sandstone. (no[t] same width). These were revealed in clearing the intrusive trench on the D-side of 703. In the trench, a large undressed block of stone. Under this block, potsherds [DRAWING/finger marks] and a mud figure of a ram (broken incomplete).

The fallen columns in 703 all had the name of Atlanersa. There are also five or six blocks with crude hieroglyphics in relief (background colored blue), of which one frag. has the name of Atlanersa.